POLICY:

Boards have responsibility to assess periodically and comprehensively the performance of its' individual board members and the overall effectiveness of the board. This process includes an evaluation of the board's composition, process of identifying and recruiting prospective board members, committee structures, and meetings, relationships with key constituencies, the President and Chief Executive Officer, and overall performance as a Board.

The FPOCF FOA Governance and Advisory Board of Directors assesses its own performance as a board in order to identify its strengths and areas in which it may improve its functioning. While the board sees its role of assessing its performance as ongoing, it sets aside time at its annual board retreat/business meeting to conduct a self-evaluation among its members. The FPOCF FOA Governance and Advisory Board of Directors holds an annual board retreat for the purpose of strategic planning, self-assessment, and organizational analysis. The self-assessment will be both a formal method conducted every other year and an informal method conducted ongoing.

The FPOCF FOA Governance and Advisory Board of Directors will review the most recent organizational strategic plan and annual goals and objectives. After reviewing the goals of the agency, the board will conduct a self-assessment. A review of the self-assessment and annual goals will provide the framework for the newly established goals and objectives. The Board may also review its previous self-assessment summaries.

The purpose of the board self-evaluation is to identify those areas of board functions that are working well and those that may need improvement. The board self-evaluation speaks to the board as a whole, not individual members. It is the evaluation process of the overall effectiveness of the board as a decision-making group.
